DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-64 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hudson'625 in view of Lee'983.

The applied Hudson'625 reference teaches that it is well known in the art to make and use a plywood laminate comprising a plurality of wood plies and an adhesive interposed between the adjacent plies. The reference teaches that type of wood used for layers may vary and clearly suggest the use of lower and higher grade veneer for individual layers. See column 1, lines 34-55, column 4, lines 1-60. The reference does not specifically teach the veneer grade. However, the applied Lee'983 teaches that it is customary in the art to subject plywood laminate to a standard ANSI/HPVAHP test (see column 2 lines 15-40). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to chose the veneer grade according to standard test as suggested by Lee'983 in Hudson'625 since such would improve processability of the plywood laminate. Also, it would have been obvious to vary the number of plies and kind of wood veneer used for individual layers since such would improve strength of the laminate.

Regarding claims 2,20,23,47 see Hudson'625, column 1, lines 45-55 for teaching of the grain directions in the individual layers.

Regarding claims 4,5,10,1824,25,29,39 it would have been obvious to optimize thickness and density of the individual layers since such is known to improve mechanical properties of the laminate.

Regarding claims 11, 12, 13, 30, 31, 32 see Lee'983 for teachings of the moisture content for veneer laminates. See column 2, lines 1-10. Laminates of Hudson'625 in view of Lee'983 would have the same moisture barrier effectiveness as the claimed laminates.

Regarding claims 15, 16, 34, 35 see Lee'983 column 1, lines 25-31 for teachings of adhesive resins.

Regarding claims related to tongue and groove and click-lock connections the examiner submits that such connections are so well established in the art that it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to incorporate such connections into any design for laminated veneer.

Art Unit: 1773

The amendments and remarks filed by applicants have been fully considered. The claims however, remain unpatentable in view of the new grounds of rejections. The allowability of the claims indicated in the previous office action is hereby withdrawn by the examiner.
